REIMAGINING MEMORIALS BOTH PUBLIC AND PRIVATE: A conversation with Crystalle Lacouture and Michael P. Murphy, moderated by Kristin Parker in collaboration with Praise Shadows Art Gallery. In a moment when public memorials, their subject matter, and authorship are being turned on its head, artist Crystalle Lacouture discusses her debut book Eleven Months, Touching the World, a memorial and conceptual project. In conversation with Kristin Parker, Lead Curator of the Arts at Boston Public Library, and well-known social justice architect Michael P. Murphy, the panel discusses ways of rethinking the making and meaning of memorials both public and private.

4–5pm | Black Box Theatre

LIKE AN INSTRUMENT: LIVE SOUND AND TEXT PARTICIPATORY EXPERIENCE WITH DISPERSED HOLDINGS What is it to read? To be in a field of language; to defy a daily experience of space-time; to think with and against and beyond another. Through live sound and text, New York-based reading residency dispersed holdings and friends will venture an answer: perhaps to read is to be "like an instrument that someone is playing." dispersed holdings is an artist-run platform for experimental publishing and listening practices founded in 2015 by Sal Randolph and David Richardson. Find them tabling at the Boston Art Book Fair 2023 or online at dispersedholdings.net

5:30–6:30pm | Black Box Theatre

PANEL: THE CIVIC SUBVERSION OF ARTISTS WITHIN GOVERNMENT MODERATED BY KARIN GOODFELLOW FROM THE CITY OF BOSTON'S MAYOR'S OFFICE OF ARTS AND CULTURE. The Boston Artist-in-Residence (AIR) Program started in 2015, amidst a decade characterized by people around the world waking up to the urgent need for collective action to fight for a just society. In this panel, artists and changemakers at the City of Boston will share their experiences and visions for how the City's systems might be reimagined through poetic and civic strategies. They will reflect on challenges they faced as they collaborated to confront systemic injuries and injustices and create change.

7–9pm | BCA Mills Gallery

FROM PLANT TO PAPER: MAGIC OF PAPERMAKING WITH KIM SCHWENK AND RICK BOYD FROM THE GREAT OAK GROVE ARTIST COOPERATIVE.

From plant to process to manifestation, workshop participants will collectively understand the process of papermaking from the deconstruction to the re-binding of materials to form a single sheet of paper. Paper is so versatile as a medium beyond books; paper adapts and transforms into vessels of craft for many purposes. Participants will have the opportunity to collectively add plant or other soluble material to the base pulp from which the sheets will form. Once dry, workshop participants can take their finished sheet with them.

2–3pm | Black Box Theatre
